“LEGGERA”, the New Album by Petra Magoni and Ferruccio Spinetti

MUSICA NUDA

“Leggera” is the title of the new album by Musica Nuda, released under the Warner label on 27 January. After the success of “Little Wonder”, Petra Magoni and Ferruccio Spinetti are back with an album of new songs, all of which, for the first time, are in Italian. In March, an international tour will include shows in France and the United States.

An album about lightness, but in the most Calvinistic sense of the word. As Calvin himself said: “Take life lightly, for lightness is not superficial, but gliding above things, not having weights on your heart”.

And this very feeling reverberates throughout the songs on the album, gifted with a delicate grace and elegance that is reminiscent of the best Italian song-writing of the 1960s. The same grace which makes the duo Musica Nuda unique, a special alchemy conjured by Ferruccio and Petra, as if it were an “essential condition” (“condizione imprescindibile”), to mention one of the songs on the album. Two kindred spirits which still today, after 14 years together, never fail to move and thrill their audiences.

The new tour, that will kick off in March and is constantly being updated on the duo’s Facebook fanpage and website, will see Petra and Ferruccio perform the new songs included in “Leggera” and a selection of their greatest hits.

“Leggera” is not only the celebration of an artistic collaboration that began over a decade ago, but also the most accomplished and mature expression of a successful duo that is always open to collaborations. As has often been the case in the past, not all of the songs on this album were written by Magoni and Spinetti. In fact, numerous artists contributed to the song-writing.

Peppe Servillo wrote the lyrics to “Come si canta una domanda”, on music composed by Ferruccio, who played guitar on this particular on this track, whereas the music on “Tu sei tutto per me” was composed by Fausto Mesolella, who also played on two of the album’s songs, with lyrics by Alessio Bonomo.

The disc also features Frankie Hi-NRG Mc, author of the lyrics to “Lunedì” on music composed by Ferruccio; Francesco Cusumano wrote “Feltrinelli”, and is followed on the album by song penned by Lelio Luttazzi and Zeppieri “Canzone senza pretese” (previously released as part of a “Musica Jazz” compilation, but in a slightly different version and without the vocal track by Frida Bollani Magoni). “Ti darò” was written by Petra Magoni and Luigi Salerno, a singer-songwriter of rare sensitivity, whose piano a vocals demo made the final cut of the track; Kaballà and Susanna Parigi worked together on “Zitto zitto”, a tongue-in-cheek track which ideally fits Petra’s flamboyant vocals. In “Luce”, Ferruccio’s music is complemented once again by Luigi Salerno’s lyrics, resulting in a song full of references to Brazilian music, of which Spinetti is a great fan. “Dimane” is the only song on the album entirely written by Ferruccio, which perfectly exemplifies his knack for melody, as well as showcasing his singing. Then, two songs co-written by Kaballà and Tony Canto: “Leggera”, the title track which conveys all the album’s freshness, and the irresistible tango “Condizione imprescindibile”, the song which probably best represents the true soul of the Musica Nuda duo. The album ends with a tribute to Italian song-writing at its best, a cover of “Ti Ruberò” by Bruno Lauzi, a song recorded two years ago for the duo’s previous disc and which finds its perfect place on the new album.
